Thick post 8vo, original cloth. London, 1908. £31 10s

The published edition of this novel is dated 1909.

Inserted is a remarkably fine letter of H. G. Wells, extending to 4 pp., 8vo, in which he writes:—

" . . . It may be of interest to you that in Feb. when your article appears, my third seriously concerned novel of real life will be published by Messrs. Macmillan, Tono Bungay (counting Mr. Lewisham & Kipps as its two predecessors). I began it as soon as Kipps was finished in '03 & I have been working at it off & on ever since. It is in no sense autobiographical. It is standing in type & if you make the purport & date of your article clear to Messrs. Macmillan they would probably let you have pulls of it.

I hope all this will be helpful to you and I shall be glad of a glimpse of your proofs. . . . &c."

85 ——— The Undying Fire.

93 ——— Salome, A Tragedy in One Act. Translated from the French of Oscar Wilde; pictured by Aubrey Beardsley.
FIRST EDITION. Crown 8vo, original cloth, uncut.
London, 1894. £105

PRESENTATION COPY, the half-title occupied with the following fine inscription in the autograph of the Author:—
"Arthur Fish, from the Author of 'Salome,' with his best wishes, and many pleasant memories of friendship.
Oscar Wilde."

Inserted is an Autograph Letter of Oscar Wilde to Arthur Fish, 4 pp., in which he writes:—
". . . As regards the idea of my becoming a French citizen, I have not yet decided—I am very much hurt not merely at the action of the Licenser of Plays, but at the pleasure expressed by the entire Press of England at the suppression of my work. However, the Press only represents the worst side of English life. There are a few, like yourself, who love art, and have sympathy with the artist." . . . &c.

With envelope post-marked July, 1892.

". . . I have received your card requesting me to inform you if I had been able to procure a set of the British Birds on Imperial Paper, which you do me the honor of wishing to place in your library. I should have felt great pleasure had it been in my power to meet your wishes in this respect, but I am sorry to find this cannot be done,—for I have none of that size on hand, neither do I know how to procure a copy. I send you a set of the Birds on Royal Paper, which I wish you to examine at your leisure & if the Impressions appear to you to be any better than those you have, I will with pleasure exchange books with you, or should you wish to look thro' the few sets I have now left on hand you shall be welcome to pick & choose from amongst them whichever you may like. I do not think that any of the former editions are better than those lately printed. . ." Etc.

With 14 plates, 39 other illustrations, and a map.

8vo, original cloth. London, 1924. 18s

An important work. "The island of San Cristoval can justly be regarded as the threshold of Oceania; in addition it has preserved until the present day many remarkable survivals of a culture, for the exact parallel of which we have to go to Egypt and the Pyramid Age. Dr. Rivers considers this 'one of the most important, if not "the" most important, piece of field-work that has ever been done in social anthropology.'"

Lyons, Jean de Tournes and Guil. Gazeau, 1555. £35

This book contains an ode to Louise Labé, the famous Lyonese poetess.

"In 1555, Peletier published at Lyons an Art poetique. Its strange orthography prevented its having a wide circulation, but it was not without influence on Peletier's friends, especially on Ronsard, whose admiration for Virgil it doubtless helped to stimulate. Peletier goes much more into technical details than Du Bellay and is more moderate in his views. Thus, although by this time he had completely rallied to the Pleiad, he can find praise for Marot and Des Periers." (Tilley, The Literature of the French Renaissance).

Small 8vo, bound by Bauzonnet-Trautz in full red levant morocco, inside dentelles, g.e. Paris, Estienne Maucroy, 1662. £10 10s

From the Ruble collection.

"Previous to the 'Escraignes dijonnoises,' Tabourot had published a far more interesting work which he whimsically entitled 'Les Bigarrures du Seigneur des Accords.' It consists almost entirely of essays on various artificial forms of verse, such as rebuses, 'vers rapportés équivoques' or puns, and leonine verses. There are also chapters on anagrams and epitaphs, so that the whole book throws a good deal of light on the literary fashions of Tabourot's day. This edition included the 'Apophtegmes du Seigneur de Gaulard' an imaginary person whose 'pleasant, witlesse and simple speeches' are meant to be humorous. Tabourot also wrote five books of epigrams not without merit, which he entitled 'Les Touches du Seigneur des Accords.'"

(Tilley, "Literature of the French Renaissance.").

501 TAHUREAU (Jacques). Les Dialogues de Jaques Tahureau, Gentilhomme du Mans. Non moins profitables que facetieux. Où les vices d'un chacun sont repris fort asprement, pour nous animer d'avantage à les fuïr, & suyvre la vertu.

The La Roche Lacarelle copy.

"These dialogues, which became exceedingly popular, were published after his death, under the title of 'Les dialogues de feu Jaques Tahureau non moins profitables que facetieuses ou les vices d'un chacun sont repris fort âprement, pour nous animer davantage à les fuir et suivre la vertu.' They have been generally classified among the 'Contes' of the sixteenth century but they contain few anecdotes, and, as Marty-Laveaux has pointed out (though he adopts the usual classification), they are, as the title shews, moral studies, almost sermons. They are written in the dialogue form which Pierre Viret had made popular among Protestant writers, and are of little interest except as throwing some light on sixteenth century manners and customs. The speakers are 'Democritic,' the censor of the world—his name also denotes that he is a follower of the philosopher Democritus—and 'Cosmophile,' its apologist. But, as in most of these satirical dialogues, there is no attempt at fair play, and 'Cosmophile' merely serves to feed 'Democritic' with fresh fuel for his satire."

"Tahureau, when he published his two volumes of poetry at Poitiers in 1554, was the recognised chief of a small band of young men of literary aspirations who, for one reason or another, were living in that city, which at this time seems to have been regarded as the literary capital not only of Poitou but of the neighbouring provinces." (Tilley, "Literature of the French Renaissance").

On les vend à Paris, à l'enseigne sainct Martin, Rue sainct Jacques, par Viuant Gaultherot, 1549. £75

The rare Second Edition of the Champfleury, which contains most of the woodcuts engraved by Tory for the First Edition. "The Champfleury is one of the important books in the History of letter design. Tory is important to us because of his part in fostering the fashion for roman letters, thereby displacing gothic types, and because he introduced in French printing the accent, apostrophe, and cedilla." (Updike, "Printing Types.").

"The eminent bookseller and publisher of Paris, Geoffroy Tory, to whose artistic skill the Etiennes' press owed many of its aesthetic improvements, held his own in an almost wider region of culture. Born at Bourges about 1480, and educated in Italy, he was professor of philosophy at Bordeaux and other flourishing universities before he turned to the business of bookselling, printing, and publishing in Paris, where Francis I. rewarded his efficiency by conferring on him the title of royal printer. At Paris he not only showed a fine taste in the choice of books for publication and in the superintendence of the typography, but he cut woodblocks with his own hand and devised illuminated miniatures. As an engraver and miniaturist he won a universal repute. Nor do such achievements exhaust Tory's characteristic record. Tory wrote in French, and illustrated with engravings by himself an encyclopaedic volume fancifully entitled 'Champ-Fleury,' in which, besides expounding the principles and practice of typography, grammar, and punctuation, he adjured his fellow countrymen to eschew foreign fashions and to develop national taste and habit on independent lines." (Sidney Lee, "French Renaissance in England").

507 TRESOR (Le), des Secretaires, Auquel est compris la maniere de composer, & escrire toutes sortes d'Epistres, ou Lettres Missives, tant par responces, qu'autrement.
